The amount declared for the luggage will be deducted from the shipper's duty free allowance of RMB 5,000.00. We would recommend each shipper to declare a modest value at the airport in order to leave the bulk of the duty free for the HHG's shipment. If the shipper declares more than RMB 5,000.00 for his

Summary overview of the customs rules applicable for Shanghai ONLY:
ALL SHIPPERS <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. All shipments entering China are subject to customs duties. 2. All shipments are inspected by x-ray (at minimum) by both customs and quarantine. As such, shippers are advised not to hide any restricted items as these are usually found and can lead to complications, delays and extra costs. As such, please ensure that no items in shipments bound for Shanghai are packed by the shipper and not double-checked for content. 3. Customs clearance is quite lengthy and usually takes 10-12 working days. 4. On arrival at Shanghai airport, upon first entry or return to China, the shipper should go through customs RED CHANNEL (located after luggage carousel) and declare their unaccompanied luggage that will follow. Customs will then counter-stamp the "Declaration of Unaccompanied Luggage" which is used to reduce part of the customs duties owed on the shipment. 5. Packing lists need to be accurate and complete as well as numbered sequentially. 6. Groupage shipments are not allowed to be imported. 7. Food is not recommended at all as quarantine tends to be stricter and stricter. All meat and meat by products as well as grains and seeds are automatically confiscated, as well as many products if deemed inappropriate by quarantine officials. 8. Non-diplomats cannot import vehicles into China at present as import of second hand vehicles is not permitted by law. Please note that for customs, a new vehicle is considered second hand if the title is in your name. It may be possible for you to import a vehicle on special order via a dealer but not personally. 9. Air shipments and Less than Container Load (LCL) shipments should not transit via any other Chinese (air) port prior to their final APOE. Otherwise, they will most likely be sent back to their point of origin. This needs to be taken under careful consideration when booking a shipment as the forwarder needs to understand this routing requirement clearly and ensure it is followed. It is not enough to check that the airline has direct service to the final AOE but one also needs to ensure that they understand routing cannot be changed to transshipment via another airport. Whilst this is not an issue for commercial cargo, this is not allowed for personal effects.

Documents required	Customs Prescriptions	Remarks
FOREIGN PASSPORT HOLDERS
1.	Shippers need to possess a valid work permit and a valid residence permit that were issued for at least a FULL year in order to import a sea- and most types of air shipments. It is important when applying for these permits to ensure they be issued for at least a FULL year and, wherever possible, we advise that shippers apply for multi-year permits.
2.	Only four (4) bottles of alcohol are permitted (two (2) are duty free and two (2) are taxed). Shippers cannot import more by paying more duties. A bottle is defined as 75 CL maximum, hence a 1 L bottle will be counted as two (2) bottles.
3.	Starting 01 November, Shanghai has joined a pilot programme for the introduction of the “unified work permit”. This means that foreign staff previously categorized as “experts” will now also be issued work permits rather than expert certificates. For customs purposes, applicants should be issued permits valid for a minimum of a FULL year. The unified work permit will be issued in the form of a RFID enabled card rather than the previous passport-like form.
CHINESE PASSPORT HOLDERS
1.	Chinese passport holders need to have resided outside China with no interruption for at least one FULL year prior to their import application being granted. If they have travelled back in the last year, even for a single day, the maximum shipment volume they will be allowed to import is 2 cubic meter.
2.	Chinese customs are typically stricter with Chinese shippers than foreign shippers. They usually require more documents and impose a higher rate of duties.
3.	Customs will usually automatically grant import permits for Chinese citizens having resided outside China for a FULL year, but any volume above that limit is subject to case by case authorization and at their discretion.
4.	Only two (2) bottles of alcohol are permitted (one (1) is duty free and one (1) taxed). Shippers cannot import more by paying more duties. A bottle is defined as 75 CL maximum, hence a 1 L bottle will be counted as two (2) bottles.
DIPLOMATS
1.	Diplomatic missions process import permits with customs. This is the only type of shipment where the permit application cannot be done by a broker. The processing with quarantine and customs is still done by a broker, but it is important to note that the permit application needs to be done by the consulate for which the diplomat works. As such, the consulate should be the point of contact on what is acceptable or not from a customs clearance point of view.
2.	Diplomats are currently restricted to import one motor vehicle per person. This includes motorbikes. Please note in addition, that whilst motorbikes may be cleared with the appropriate documentation, it has been reported that registration, even for diplomats, may not currently be possible. We advise shippers to ask their embassy for advice on these matters.
